Service Animal Sponsorship Letter

Hello, my name is [REDACTED] I am a college student at the University of Rhode Island, and I am applying to adopt a service animal from New Life IFS with a quite limited income.

I suffer from severe anxiety and panic disorder. This causes me to suffer frequent panic attacks that can be quite debilitating, and often prevent me from doing much outside home or school, and make it extremely difficult to get through my day. I have been seeking help for 10 years. I have seen multiple doctors, been on more medications that I can count, and have even been hospitalized twice. And yet still I suffer everyday.

My disability also prevents me from travelling, especially by myself, and even if I do manage to do so, the experience is very unpleasant and anxiety-filled. I want to be able to have my independence, and not be so terrified of being on my own (I have a trip coming up next month that I am quite nervous about).

I believe having a service animal by my side would not only be able to help me through my panic attacks as trained to do so, but would be a companion by my side, so I would not feel so alone, especially in my most desperate times of need. A dog is someone who won't judge you for being anxious, won't simply tell me to be positive, and won't walk away out of annoyance.

I am asking for your generosity because I believe adopting a service dog is something that will greatly change my life for the better. Who knows? Perhaps I will even be able to live it.

Thank you for taking the time to read this letter, and I hope you choose to support my cause. It would mean the world to me, and I thank you.
